Dr. G L. Morris and Mr. Rolph Wood, of Buckingham, were in town yesterday. Dr. Morris is an applicant for appointment to the treasurership of Buckingham County: That several other applicants presented their claims for the appointment to Judge Hutcheson in Farmville Tuesday Among the applicants for appointment are Mrs. Richard Ellis, who has been serving as deputy treasurer, Monroe Johns, Col. Albert Terrell and Dr. G. L Morris. Sheriff Griffin, who it is said will be a candidate at the election next year is not a candidate for appointment for the short term.

Buckingham is a big county and the canvass next year is already being spoken of as presenting for the candidates a great local fight.

John L Lee

This distinguished Virginia lawyer passed away at his home in Amherst county Sunday in the 65th year of his age. He had been sick for several months. Jack was recognized as one of the giant criminal lawyers of Virginia and his reputation and skill often called him to distant states to defend those charged with crime. He was frank and honest, fearless and a powerful advocate before a jury.

The writer knew him for many years in his young days and Jack was a loyal and faithful friend and we mourn his death with his host of friends. He is survived by his wife and three children.

Rockbridge Letter

Dear TIMES:—The good old summertime is a thing of the past and the loathe to part with the old friends, yet we welcome this grand autumn, which is now upon us, in full sway. It has been the good fortune of your quondam correspondent to make a prolonged visit to this part of our dear 'Old Virginia' during this season.

The mountains around here are one gorgeous mass of beauty. The bright red of sourwood and dogwood, intermingled with the yellow of hickory and maples, together with the varied shades of other foliage, make a picture too grand and too varied to be copied by human hand. On the lowlands, some trees are still green and here and there a tree stands out in flaming colors without a single green leaf; but the mountain sides look as if they had been brushed over with burnished gold. One cannot look at the mountains and not appreciate nature's wonderful scenery and also be impressed by the number of tourists in cars with licenses from distant cities, enjoying the exquisite landscape. Now we can exclaim with the poet, "Who can paint like nature? Can imagination boast among its varied scenes of hues like these?"

This is a beautiful and fertile farm, situated on on Buffalo Creek and North River. A large crop of wheat, rye, oats, and barley has been sowed, all of which are growing rapidly. Farmers say they reap a better crop of grain from early sowing and so by middle of October most of them have finished. It would be wise if our Appomattox farmers would adopt the same plan, but alas, no, they are slow. Some farmers sold tobacco in Lynchburg on the opening day, and were far from being pleased. It does seem that the buyers would have shown more policy and fellow-feeling than to get tobacco below the cost of 'Friends have been scattered like roses in June, some to the bridal, some to the tomb." With best wishes, Veritas

BARTON TO HEAD BAPTIST PROGRAM

Missourian Will Lead Effort to Increase Mission and Benevolent Budget

CHURCHES GIVE TOO LITTLE

Survey Reveals Low Standards Maintained by Many—Plans Are Laid For Improvement in 1927

To lead Southern Baptists in greater by increasing their budget for the support of missions, Christian education and benevolences, Dr. A. J. Barton of Kansas City, superintendent of Baptist work in Missouri for the past three years, and one of the most prominent men in the denomination, has accepted the position of general director of the Baptist Co-operative Program, and will move to Nashville, Tenn., to assume his new duties at once.

Southern Baptists are seeking to raise $9,000,000 for the Co-operative Program during this convention year and Dr. Barton will seek to enlist the aid of every agency and church of the Southern Baptist Convention in the accomplishment of this task.

Has Served Denomination

To his new position Dr. Barton brings a wide denominational and public experience. He has held prominent pastorates in the South and has served as associate secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, field secretary of the Home Mission Board, general secretary of the Arkansas State Mission Board, and secretary of the Texas Baptist Education Commission prior to taking up his work in Missouri. He has also long been prominent in the cause of temperance. For sixteen years he has been a member of the executive and legislative committees of the Anti-saloon League of America, and during his incumbency as superintendent of the Anti-saloon League of Texas he saw prohibition written into the constitution of that state.

Bringing the Baptist churches of the South to a higher standard in giving to the missionary, educational and benevolent program of the denomination, known as the Co-operative Program, will be the first and chief task to which the new general director will address himself.

According to a recent survey of the record of the, Baptist churches of the South, compiled from the letters of the individual churches to their district associations for 1925, made by Dr. E. F. Aldredge, statistical secretary of Southern Baptists, 5,927 churches listed as co-operating with the Southern Baptist Convention, gave nothing to missions and benevolences last year. Other interesting information gleaned from this survey reveals that 12,319 other churches, or slightly more than one-half of the total number of churches, retained from 76 to 99 cents out of every dollar coming into their treasuries for purely local work; 1,665 churches applied from 67 to 75 cents, and 1,564 churches from 51 to 66 cents out of every dollar contributed to their own local work; whereas, only 801 churches in all the South gave 50 cents or more out of every dollar coming into their treasuries to missions and benevolences beyond the borders of their own communities.

The Southern Baptist Convention has established an ideal of a fifty-fifty distribution in that it is recommending to the churches that they endeavor to give half of all the money raised by them to the general work of the denomination, retaining the other half for their own local expenses.

Included in the plans of the Co-operative Program is an every-member canvass this fall in every Baptist church with a view to enlisting every member in making a subscription to missions and benevolences.

Another effort is that of enlisting at least 500,000 Southern Baptists as tithers, or giving one-tenth of their incomes to religious work through their churches. In this connection the number of tithers which each state in the Southern Baptist

Mary Succeeds on Main Street

By LAURA MILLER

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE YARDS

© 1926, by Laura Miller

"Main Street can't train girls to earn a living," is a plaint that runs through thousands of letters, in one wording or another, from girls who seek careers. Then, it is that courses in biology, in art, in medicine, are not to be found at any crossroads. But suppose a fury of desire to paint people—or to cut them up and remold them nearer to good health's desire—doesn't drive Mary off Main Street? Shall she forsake family and friends and all the comfortable, homely things one grows up with, for a casual career? If one's just the average girl, may not the little home town job, where a conscientious worker learns something of everything, help out if the great test comes?

Let me tell you the story of Mary Marshall of Marshalltown, Ind. It was early in 1919. War brides were hurrying to meet transports from France. Fathers in khaki were losing their look born of horrors as they gazed upon miraculous little sons that recalled their own before-the-war selves.

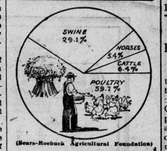
Mary Marshall, nee Hopkins, had just come to Washington for a job that would support herself and John, Jr. She and John, Sr., had run the railroad and village telegraph office until 1918. Then she had abruptly become Mrs. Marshall and sole operator. She was a competent worker, evidently. And she knew she was releasing not merely a man, but her man for war service. When John, Jr., arrived she gave up work and lived with Father and Mother Marshall.

The day Mary came to me—I was running Uncle Sam's employment office in Washington just then—I tried to send her back to Marshalltown. She had a home. She had a baby to take care of. And she was—so I told her emphatically untrained. Hadn't she come straight from the corner of Main Street and Railroad Avenue?

Mary Marshall wouldn't go back to Marshalltown. After a generous portion of stupidity on my part and of shyness on hers, the story came out. John, Sr., was in a Washington hospital, shell-shocked. His chances for sanity lay in seeing Mary and John, Jr., every day. A job was found for Mary as correspondence clerk in the telegraph division of the United States Railroad administration. It was no charity job, either. "There isn't anything she didn't learn something about in that little cramp of an office in the railroad yards," her chief said later. "She's all to the good."

For obvious reasons, Mary Marshall and Marshalltown aren't her real name and address. But the story is real to the core.

Chickens Top Wheat Eaters



(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation)

Wheat and flour are synonymous in the minds of many. As a matter of fact, however, forty per cent of the mammoth wheat crop never leaves the farm at all, but is used for seed purposes and feeding farm animals, states the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation in a survey recently completed on wheat consumption. It is used most abundantly for feeding in those sections of the country having a wheat surplus and a shortage of the usual feed crops such as corn, oats and barley. The poorer qualities of wheat, not suited to making flour are kept behind for this purpose.

Chickens are the heaviest consumers of wheat fed on the farm, 29.1% of all wheat so distributed. Swine are next, with 29.1% of wheat-growing sections horses eat wheat and consume on an av of 5.4% of all wheat fed on farms while the remaining 6.4% a com- cattle. at the has been sold medal of ecretion to a ganization, it national head- America. Some beautiful small lots for Town of Appomattox.

THE TIMES-
APPOMATTOX, VIRGINIA, THURSDAY MORNING,

FOREST VIEW

How is this for a winter morning? After snowing all day yesterday, our first snow of the season!

The huntsmen have been having great sport the past week.

Messrs. T. H. Layne and Richard Nottingham, of Eastern Shore, are visiting in the home of R. W. Martin and enjoying the sport of hunting, they in company with R. W. Martin visited in the home of B. C. Sims last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Ford, and son, Jim, spent Sunday in Lynchburg, where they visited their daughter, Mrs. Ewers.

Mr. Curtis Mann returned to Richmond last Wednesday, after spending several days with his parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Martin visited in the home of A. S. Woolridge last Sunday.

Master Thomas Odor is on the sick list with a cold.

Thansgiving is the next day for us to look forward to, and then Xmas will be exactly one month off, the years roll by fast and reminds us, "Time and tide wait for no man."

HIXBURG

Our sick continue to improve.

One of our neighbors request that our game warden drop around in this part of the sticks that cars are being stationed along side the road and much unwelcomed shooting is heard and your efficiency will meet with cooperation.

Quite a lot of tobacco was taken down on this season but only small lots are being sold, well seasoned tobacco taken down in this month will keep in bulk untill next spring though some farmers say they expect to let their crop hang and save the work of planting next spring unless prices improve.

Mr. Frank Gilliam, one of our best and most prosperous young farmers is planning to move to town, our community will miss this good family so much and our church will miss them more.

Messrs. Pat and Edd McPhillips, two of our most business like young men have rented the Gilliam farm and will move up on Appomattox River this coming year. We will miss these two boys and their mother from the village.

Mr. John Case is preparing to leave here for Lynchburg to engage in public work next year, although he is making an average matter how weak a man may be, if he shall not fail.

Museum to Get Late President Harding Bike
Marion, Ohio.—H. D. Keeler, a local bicycle dealer, has in his possession a bicycle owned by the late President Warren G. Harding.
Keeler plans to present the wheel to the Harding Memorial association when the Harding museum is erected.
The late President rode this wheel nearly a quarter of a century ago. Today it is just as he used it.
President Harding bought the bicycle in 1880, when bicycling was the greatest outdoor sport. When Harding turned to automobiles he gave the bike to his chauffeur, who rode it for five years. Later it was stored in an old barn, then it was given to a grocery clerk, Louis Dennig.
Dennig gave the wheel to Keeler in 1920. It was exhibited during the summer of Harding's Presidential campaign and in the fall of 1920 was taken to Chicago and exhibited among the curios at the Chicago cycle show.
